Art. 1 Introduction

Democratic societies and the structures defining them have undergone fundamental social, economic, political, and technological changes in the past few years. The consequences are far-reaching and permeate all areas of society. One central aspect is usually described as the "culturalization of contemporary life." Such culturalization should be taken to mean that an increasing number of spheres in everyday life are permeated by cultural challenges, tasks, and issues so that art and culture are endowed with fundamentally new functions that go well beyond the traditional underlying notions. Today, engaging with art and culture is considered a basic technique in society and cultural skills form the foundations of agency in contemporary societies. For this reason, cultural education plays a central role both in an institutional and extra-institutional framework as it aims at fostering empowerment, without which it would be ineffective within society. Effective cultural education must be emancipatory and empowering; it has to teach the skills required for dealing with cultural expressions and symbols on a productive, reflective and communicative level alike.

The teacher training programs offered at the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna are based on a notion of art and culture that critically reflects upon changes within society. The result is a definition of art and culture that forms a framework for cultural expression and social production to be mutually dependent. Art and culture are considered to be a locus to be inhabited, something to be negotiated, comparable to a language that constitutes and reconstitutes itself and its speakers as it is used. On a methodological level, this is manifested by the combination of cultural production, reflection and communication. Within this context, cultural production stands for the ability to articulate one's creative ideas, which contains — without being limited to — the notion of art; cultural reflection is the capability of understanding and embedding artistic, creative, and social action in discursive contexts; and communication is the principle of dialogue whereby art and culture are conveyed, a principle which is defined by interaction with a variety of target groups and formats.

Art. 2 Qualifications

The Institute for Education in Arts at the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna offers teacher training programs covering the following subjects:

- Design, Architecture, and Education – Contextual Design
- Art Education – Art and Communication
- Textile Arts – Fashions and Styles

These teacher training programs qualify graduates to teach the subjects of Art and Communication ("Bildnerische Erziehung"), Contextual Design ("Werkerziehung"), and Fashions and Styles ("Textiles Gestalten") at state-run and private educational institutions. The courses offered are designed in such a way as to enable students firstly to acquire interdisciplinary skills in the fine arts and purpose-oriented design, and related fundamental skills in technology and media, and secondly to engage in reflection based on insights from cultural studies and in the practice and theory of being an educator of art and culture. The programs are geared to provide students with extensive skills which go beyond teaching qualifications and make graduates suited for work as cultural educators, in art and cultural studies, and in design and artistic fields.

While the teacher training programs Art and Communication, Contextual Design, and Fashion and Styles are each focused on different aspects of cultural activities, they are also integrative in nature. The mutual interrelatedness in diversity aims at breaking with historical conventions determining cultural education both within schools and elsewhere. In terms of methods, this is reflected in a focus on interdisciplinarity and the constant probing of connections between cultural production, reflection and communication. Continuous work on and critique of methodologies is of central importance. At the content level, it means that the notion of culture is expanded to cover everything from art to design, fashion, architecture, urban life, and textile practice; more specifically it refers to a growing inclusion of everyday culture in the themes and forms of practice which tuition focuses on. In this context, everyday culture should be taken to mean a broad range of expressions of contemporary life, both urban and rural, connected as much with pop, style, and practices of resistance as they are with folk culture and rituals of adaptation, and equally well versed in new technologies and old craft traditions.

Profile of the Textile Arts – Fashions and Styles Program

The teacher training program Fashions and Styles focuses on fashions, clothes, and styles as well as material and visual everyday culture. The core contents are negotiated on three levels: art and design practice is intertwined with the contents of discourses in cultural studies, art, and sociology, as well as with the acquisition of cultural agency and educational skills.

The notion of style defines the core of art and design praxis as a combination of artistic, textile, everyday, and pop practices and related media. This way, style ties in with aesthetic practices in fashion, lifestyle, and textile techniques as they are inscribed in art. In the core area of fashions, style reflects the way in which players in everyday life and youth culture use their specific procedures and ideas that are very much their own for the purpose of symbolic communication, and the coding and shaping of fashions. Fashions and styles are seen as technologies that produce subjects, acting in social, political, and gender-specific performance whilst forming a part of the global production economies.

Part I of the program teaches skills in multimedia representation for art and design, analogue and digital basics of fashion design, and practices of textile arts. Parallel to this, students are familiarized with the fundamentals of education in art and culture as well as theories of art, culture, and society. Part I of the program concludes with a project in the subject Fashion and Styles that combines practical design with teaching, cultural studies, and cultural education. In the core areas of Part II of the program, art and design praxis are interlaced with theoretical reflection and cultural agency. The subject Science Fashion deals with the impact of new technologies and life-science materials on fashions, bodies, and styles. The subject Fashions and Communication focuses on specialized practices of acting and educating in an innovative way; an advanced subject may be chosen from among the courses offered by the Institute for Education in the Arts as a further focus.

This teaching qualification is seen as a way of empowering pupils through school education; graduates are also qualified for work in other fields related to cultural education, design, and art.

Objectives of Training in Art and Design:

- Developing discerning capabilities of perception and expression and agency
- Developing and implementing ideas and concepts Individually and collectively in specific artistic or design-related work and projects
- Developing methods and problem-solving skills in artistic and purpose-oriented design
- Mastering artistic and designing techniques and production technologies
- An ability to present and document work in art and design
- An ability to critically reflect upon work in art and design in a contemporary context
- Understanding one's own artistic and design production as work within and concerning society

Objectives of Training in Art and Cultural Studies:

- Understanding the connections between art, culture, and society
- Acquiring an overview of the development of art in the modern age and of visual culture, as well as related theoretical discourses
- An ability to engage in independent academic research and education in the fields of art and culture

Objectives of Training in Philosophy of Education and Teaching:

- An ability to develop relevant questions pertaining to contemporary education in art and culture, as well as to independently devise concepts of education and ways of putting them into practice and reflecting upon them
- An ability to engage with the history of ideas and the social history of education in art and culture, and with related teaching methods in the school subject from a theoretical and practical perspective
- Acquiring knowledge and methodical skills in education as a basis for problems specific to the subject
- Becoming sensitized to the individual problems of pupils whilst considering issues of generation gaps and class differences, gender-specific attributes, and transnational dynamics
- Acquiring skills for responsible educational action and communication, role reflection abilities, and team-playing skills
- An ability to interact, intervene, and cooperate with and in educational institutions
- An ability to tap into fields of activities outside schools and institutions and to develop, implement, and reflect upon educational concepts in these fields
- A critical understanding of the dynamism at work between society, the function of cultural education, and educational institutions as well as their constituent processes

Art. 3 Scope, Duration, and Structure of Studies

- 1) Teacher training programs are subject to the compulsory combination of two school subjects. Their duration is 9 semesters; in Part II of the program, a diploma thesis pertaining to one subject is required, which will either be academic, artistic and academic, or creative and academic in nature.

- 2) The Textile Arts – Fashions and Styles program comprises 129 semester hours (credit hours), i.e. 135 ECTS credits, broken down into the following compulsory sections: 60 semester hours (59 ECTS credits) for training in art and design, 27 semester hours (20 ECTS credits) for training in art and cultural studies, and 34 semester hours (33 ECTS credits) for training in Philosophy of Education and Teaching. Practical training in schools (schulpraktische Ausbildung, SPA) requires 6 semester hours (6 ECTS credits). 2 semester hours (2 ECTS credits) go to free electives. Electives may be taken at Austrian or foreign universities. Students are recommended to choose electives that are related to the Education in the Arts program in terms of ideas or themes. In-depth coursework in the respective areas of training comprising a maximum of 6 semester hours (6 ECTS credits) can be completed in the advanced subject (Part II of the program). This advanced subject is also listed on the degree certificate.

- 3) The Education in the Arts program at the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna is divided into two parts. Part I comprises 4 semesters and a total of 67 semester hours (60 ECTS credits), Part II lasts 5 semesters comprising a total of 63 semester hours (75 ECTS credits).

- 4) The school subject Textile Arts – Fashions and Styles is divided into the following subjects:

Designation of subject	Sem.hr.	ECTS
Part I – 4 semesters
Techniques of Representation	15	13
Philosophy of Education in Arts and Culture	12	11
Art and Design Practice	22	17
Fashions and Styles	12	15
Culture and Society I	4	2
Free electives	2	2
Part II – 5 semesters
Science Fashion	12	12
Fashions and Communication	22	22
Culture and Society II	10	8
Philosophy of Education in Arts and Culture	6	6
Advanced Subject	6	6

All subjects with the exception of the free electives are exam subjects that count towards the final degree.

- 5) The introductory phase belongs to Part I of the program and comprises 13 semester hours (10 ECTS credits) for the school subject Textile Arts – Fashions and Styles. It covers contents that are specific to the subject as well as educational and teaching contents that are characteristic of the program.
- 6) Students whose combination of subjects comprises two subjects taught at the Academy of Fine Arts must take substitute classes in case of overlaps, i.e. if classes are defined as compulsory in both subjects, they must be completed once only and substituted with other classes comprising the same number of hours in the other subject.

The following classes qualify as substitute classes during Part I of the program: compulsory electives from the subject Techniques of Representation, additional classes offered by the Institute for Education in the Arts, and all classes of Part I of the program for the three school subjects (if requirements for admission to the classes have been met). Moreover, classes offered by the Institute for Art and Cultural Studies and gender-specific classes can be credited as substitute classes. In Part II of the program, all classes of the program for the three school subjects (if requirements for admission to the classes have been met) qualify as substitute classes. Furthermore, classes offered by the Institute for Art and Cultural Studies and gender studies-oriented classes can be credited as substitute classes. When choosing the substitute classes, students must take into account the prescribed proportion of classes reserved for educational and teaching training in the respective school subject pursuant to sec. 54 para. 6 of the University Act 2002 (20 to 25 per cent of the entire volume of work).

- 7) Not including practical training in schools, teacher training curricula must reserve 20 to 25 per cent of the entire volume of work for the respective school subject for educational and teaching training (sec. 54 para. 6 of the University Act 2002). At the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna this is primarily provided by the classes offered in the subject Philosophy of Education in Arts and Culture for all three school subjects. Additionally, classes on teaching skills and practical training in schools are assigned to the other subjects in the respective curricula.
- 8) The subject Philosophy of Education in Arts and Culture substitutes the educational and academic preparatory classes at the University of Vienna for the three school subjects offered at the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna.

- 9) The advanced subject in Part II of the program offers students an opportunity to carry out in-depth coursework in the fields of art and design, art and cultural studies, or educational science and teaching. The advanced subject is also listed on the degree certificate, thus enabling students to prepare for or facilitate access to other professional fields and postgraduate training.
- 10) Practical training in school (schulpraktische Ausbildung, SPA) is divided into two stages. The first stage must be completed at the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna for each school subject; it comprises the Subject-specific Practical Training listed for each of the school subjects in Part I of the program. The second stage (Subject-specific Internship) is intended to start from the fifth semester onwards; it is offered by the Department of Education and Human Development at the University of Vienna and comprises 4 semester hours (4 ECTS credits) for each school subject.
- 11) Students are encouraged to go on field trips. The associated volume of work is equivalent to 2 ECTS credits.
- 12) To foster students' linguistic and artistic skills and support international mobility, students are encouraged to participate in studies abroad that are credited in Austria and to enroll in exchange programs.
- 13) Students who are not native speakers of German must furnish proof of proficiency in German pursuant to sec. 63 para. 1, 10 and 11 of the University Act 2002 at the beginning of their studies. A school-leaving exam certificate/graduation diploma stating that German was the language of tuition is the preferred form of proof. If this is not possible, an exam of German proficiency must be passed before students can be admitted.

Art. 4 Types of Courses

Artistic Tuition (Künstlerischer Unterricht, or KU)

Artistic tuition consists of supervision and support for artistic work and projects. To obtain a pass grade students must attend regularly and complete their artistic work or project work. Classes can be freely chosen after consultation with the teacher in charge of the respective class. The number of students is limited. The KU course is graded by an ongoing review of progress.

Individual Artistic Tuition (Künstlerischer Einzelunterricht, or KE)

Individual artistic tuition involves one-to-one supervision and support for artistic work and projects. To obtain a pass grade students have to attend regularly and complete their artistic work or project work. The number of students is limited. The KE course is graded by an ongoing review of progress.

Art and Design class (Gestaltungsunterricht, or GU)

Art and Design classes aim to develop students' practical engagement by exploring issues of design/art, technical and/or educational problems, and the theories upon which they are based. Students are taught theoretical content in groups and supported in their work relating to design/art, technical matters, and/or educational problems by one-to-one supervision. The number of students is limited. The GU course is graded by an ongoing review of progress.

Lecture course (Vorlesung, or VO)

Lecture courses aim to communicate central ideas, methods, and doctrines in the specialization whilst taking into account the current state of development in theory and art. Lecture courses are graded on the basis of either oral or written exams.

Proseminar (PS)

Proseminars help students prepare for academic work, introduce them to special literature, and teach the application of techniques used in academic work through the use of examples. They are intended to serve as a preparatory stage to seminars and deal with issues concerning the relevant subject by using papers and their presentations, discussions, as well as technical debates. The number of students is limited. Proseminars are graded by an ongoing review of progress.

Seminar (Seminar, or SE)

Seminars serve to deepen the students' engagement with part of their specialization from an academic point of view. Students are called upon to make original contributions in the form of papers and/or contributions to discussions as well as written assignments. The number of students is limited. Seminars are graded by an ongoing review of progress.

Project Study (Projektstudium, or PJ)

The goal of project studies is to plan and carry out original work in design/art and/or educational projects individually or in a team. Project studies focus on specific themes and may be interdisciplinary in nature. Practical work and/or related documentation must be submitted by individuals or groups of students for performance to be graded. The number of students is limited. Project studies are graded by an ongoing review of progress.

Practical course (Übung, or UE)

In practical courses, artistic, design, academic, technical, and educational capabilities and skills are taught, tested, and applied. They must conform to the practical and professional objectives of the programs and deal with the completion of concrete assignments. The number of students is limited. Practical courses are graded by an ongoing review of progress.

Field Trip (Exkursion, or EX)

On field trips, students visit locations outside the Academy for the purpose of studying themes that are related to the university's objectives. The number of students is limited.

Diploma Seminar

The purpose of the diploma seminar is for students to engage at an advanced level with the contents of the diploma theses. The number of students is limited. Diploma seminars are graded by an ongoing review of progress.

Art. 5 Admission to Classes

- 1) Classes for the school subject Textile Arts – Fashions and Styles with special requirements:
 - Fashion Design II: Production and Visual Presentation requires a pass grade from the class Fashion Design I: Conceptual Design (Digital and Analogue).
 - The class Project Fashions and Styles requires pass grades from the classes Visual Grammar, Analogue Representation III (Fashion Drawing), Aesthetic Theory, and Practice of Fashions and Styles, Experimental Textile Arts, Theoretical Methods and Approaches, as well as Methods of Scientific Work.
 - The Project Science Fashion requires pass grades from the classes Visual Grammar, Aesthetic Theory, and Practice of Fashions and Styles, Experimental Textile Arts, Theoretical Methods and Approaches, as well as Methods of Scientific Work.

- The Project Fashions and Communication requires a pass grade from the class Project Fashions and Styles.
- Typography and Layout I requires a pass grade from the class Digital Representation I.

During Part I of the program, students may already attend and complete courses required for Part II, provided that they have successfully completed the classes required for admission.

- 2) Students who have not passed the entrance examination (concurrent enrollment) are admitted to classes of the type VO (lectures), PS (proseminars), and SE (seminars) subject to limited attendance.
- 3) Non-degree students are only admitted to classes of the type VO (lectures).

Art. 6 Examination Rules

1) Entrance Examination

Admission to the art teacher training programs at the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna requires a pass grade in the entrance examination. The entrance examination consists of the presentation of a portfolio in front of a board of examiners and a practical exam which will determine the candidate's aptitude for teacher training in the chosen school subject at the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna.

2) Preliminary Exam (Erste Diplomprüfung)

The preliminary exam marks the completion of Part I of the program. It formally consists of the submission of certificates for all courses required for Part I of the program (with the exception of electives) in the respective school subject. The preliminary exam is deemed to have been completed successfully when the student has obtained pass grades in all courses in the respective school subject which are required for Part I of the program.

3) Diploma Thesis

The diploma thesis is either an academic thesis or an academic thesis with an art or design focus which serves as evidence that the candidate is able to deal with a topic independently, and can produce original content using acceptable academic methods. The topic chosen should complement one of the degree exam subjects pertaining to the school subject addressed in the diploma thesis. It is recommended that teaching and/or educational aspects be taken into account in the diploma thesis. If the candidate's diploma thesis concerns an art, design, or educational project, the focus should be on the academic aspect.

4) Final Exam (Zweite Diplomprüfung)

The final exam marks the completion of Part II of the program. It consists of two parts.

The first part formally consists of the submission of certificates for all courses required for Part II of the program (including fee electives).

The following requirements have to be fulfilled for the second part of the final exam: firstly, evidence that practical training in a school has been completed successfully must be furnished; secondly, the candidate must prove that he/she has completed his/her studies for the second school subject in the teacher training program and that the diploma thesis has been approved.

The second part of the final exam consists of a written presentation of the diploma thesis and an oral exam on the specialization pertaining to the topic of the diploma thesis before a board of examiners. The board of examiners is appointed by the person/body in charge of legal issues of the program; proposals made by the candidate will be taken into account as far as this is possible. The diploma thesis supervisor must be appointed as an examiner. The teacher training degree program has been completed when both parts of the final exam have been completed successfully.

5) ECTS Credits

Under the European Credit Transfer System (ECTS), 30 credits are awarded per semester (15 for each school subject). ECTS credits describe student workload and time expended according to types of classes. 1 ECTS credit is equivalent to 25 hours in real time.

6) Accreditation of exams

Pass grades for exams at the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna or other educational institutions are accredited pursuant to sec. 78 of the University Act 2002 upon request by degree students.

Art. 7 Transitional Provisions

- 1) The present curriculum applies to all students who begin their studies at the Academy of Fine Arts (teacher training program in the school subjects Art Education – Art and Communication, Design, Architecture, and Education – Contextual Design, and Textiles Arts – Fashions and Styles) in the winter semester 2009/10.
- 2) Current students of Textile Arts (pursuant to the curriculum 2002U) or students admitted to the program for the school subject Textile Arts at the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna are entitled to transfer to the 2009U curriculum. In this case Art. 7, para. 4 and 5 apply. With the commencement of the 2009 U curriculum, current students of Textile Arts (UF 2008) or students admitted to the program for the school subject Textile Arts (UF 2008) at the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna are transferred to the 2009U curriculum.

- 3) Students who obtained a pass grade in the entrance examination for the school subject Textiles Arts before the 2009U curriculum entered into effect but did not start or temporarily discontinued their studies are entitled to begin studying under the 2009U curriculum (after having fulfilled all admission requirements).
- 4) Students who successfully completed all classes of Part I of a school subject taught at the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna under the curriculum applying to their studies at the time when the 2009U curriculum entered into effect are also deemed to have completed Part I of their studies in this school subject under the 2009U curriculum and to have passed the preliminary exam.
- 5) Students who successfully completed all classes of Part I and Part II of a school subject taught at the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna under the curriculum applying to their studies at the time when the 2009U curriculum entered into effect are also deemed to have completed the first part of the final exam in this school subject under the 2009U curriculum. They are not required to do any additional classes in that school subject.

Art. 8 Validity

This curriculum enters into force as per October 1, 2009.

* Classes marked with * (P* and WP*) are classes that are educational in nature or relate to teaching the school subject concerned.

 The respective classes to be attended for the individual advanced subjects are always announced at the beginning of the academic year or semester, as the case may be.
